The Ross McDonald Company incorporated locking cabinets, art rack, secure key locks for carriages, as well as library shelving to fulfill the requirements of this project. If you're ever in Pacific Grove, this is a beautiful library to visit overlooking the Monterey Bay Aquarium and the Wharf in addition to a breathtaking coastal view from the reading room.

Most of the installation required access from both ends of the carriage and therefore a safety aisle lock at each access point. The Aurora Mobile system allows this safety lock to be engaged and disengaged from either end of the carriage. Most systems would require you to walk to the other end of the carriage to unlock the system. This increases safety, by making the lock usable, and greatly increases productivity.

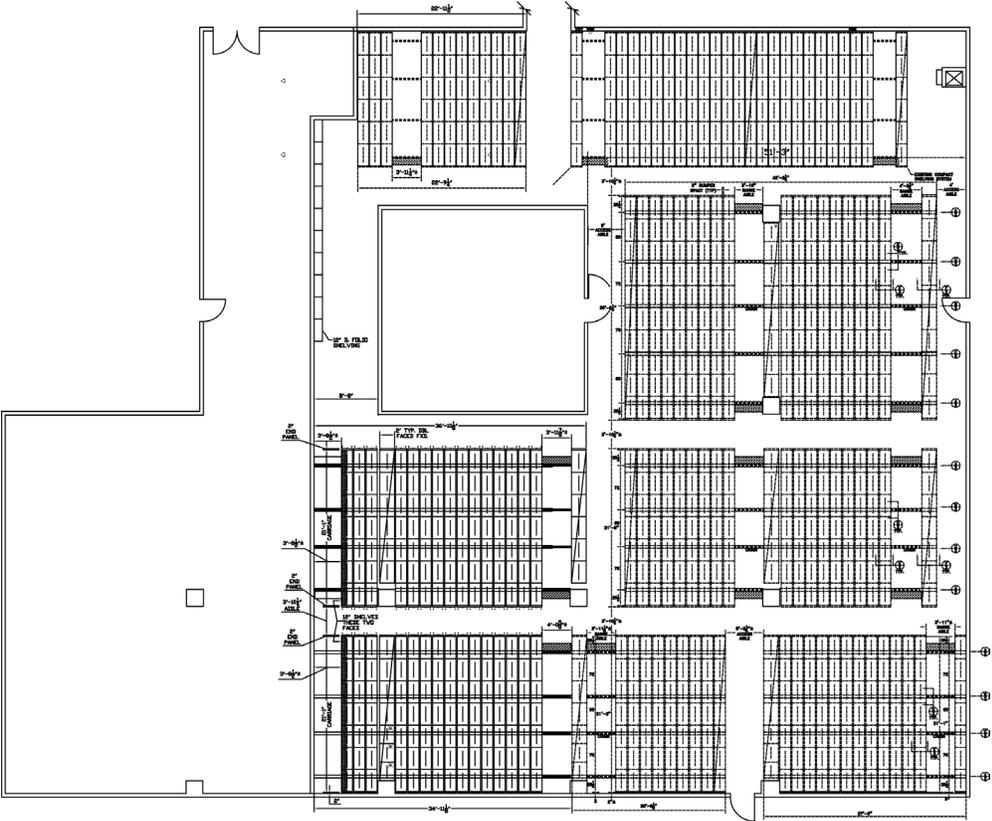

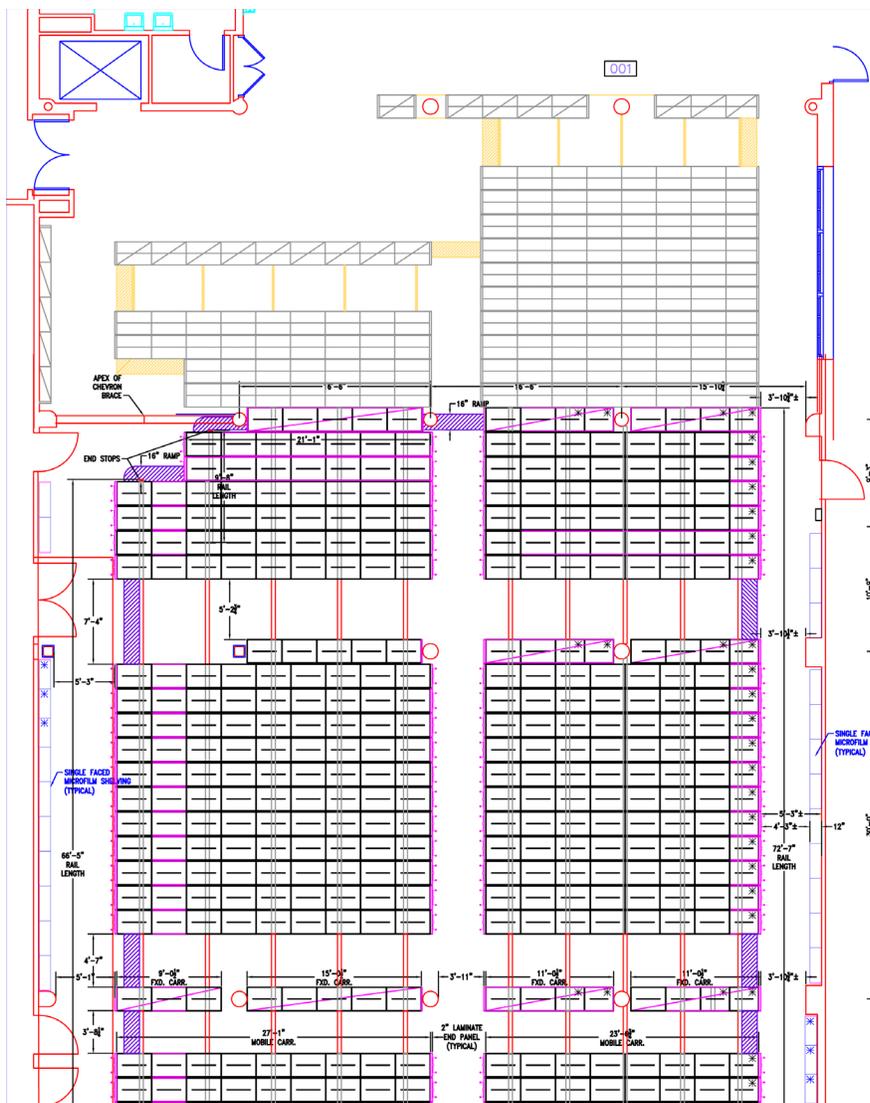

The Ross McDonald Company executed this project in approximately five phases over a period of ten years. Upon retirement, former director Lance Dickson called to thank The Ross McDonald Company for their unusual ability to meet budget and time frames. In the director's own words "Other companies just don't operate as efficiently as yours."

The Ross McDonald Company was selected from four firms to execute this project. The selection committee (Library Director and Project Architect) commented on our helpfulness and professionalism in conducting our proposal as well as installation. The Ross McDonald Company, in the absence of an owner's Project Manager, coordinated construction sequencing and details with the General Contractor to relieve the library and architectural staff of this harmonization and assisted staff with capacity calculations and storage solutions for various types of media
